'Enjoying the Cafe Band on a Friday evening'

All Saints Community Café

'Sharon serves Gill at the Counter'

The ownership of the Café has now been transferred to a new community benefit society called All Saints Community Catering Limited, which is managed by a group of directors including Margaret Healey-Pollett who has been operating the café as a sole trader for the past two years. The new arrangement has the advantage of limited liability, which makes it possible to raise the capital needed for improvements. From her experience of running the café, Margaret has come to understand where improvement is needed, and how it might generate more income. For example the café could provide more catering for the various events that take place in the Centre, but currently there are limits to this due to difficulties with temperature control in the kitchen. We have ideas about how to keep the kitchen cooler, but it will need capital investment. More information will be made available about this over the next few months. Meanwhile look out for the evening events we are developing:

Weekly on Wednesdays from 5.30 -7.30pm. The Short Date Café. This is a joint venture with the Youth Project when we will cook and serve meals made from food that is in danger of going to landfill. Weekly on Fridays, the café remains open until 9.30, with live music from local performers between 7 - 9. Look out on Facebook and the blackboard for what is coming up. Monthly Well-being Evenings, when for £15 you can enjoy a two-course meal, and a taster head or hand massage, or a reiki session. Occasionally we have advice from a nutritionist too. All food is freshly prepared in our kitchen. Our tea and coffee are fairtrade: the coffee is from Ethical Additions, supporting the Kenyan growers directly, and our tea is from Traidcraft. We have a hot meals menu on the board.

EARTHLY THINGS works by Sarah McWilliams

16 Oct-10 Dec2017
Sarah McWilliams completed her degree in Fine and Applied Arts at Ulster University in 2003, specialising in Lens Based Media. She subsequently trained to become a secondary school art teacher and currently works in the West Midlands. The exhibition is open daily from 9.00 - 5.00 in The Welcome Space at All Saints Centre, and after church service on Sundays. Joyce Rimmer's exhibition of drawings continues until October 15, and the forthcoming exhibition after Sarah McWilliams will be work by students of King Edward VI Camphill School for Girls.

The Robin Centre

The Robin Centre, providing day care services to older people within the All Saints Centre, has just had a big boost to its membership. Last year, Birmingham City Council announced that it would be closing the day centres for the elderly which it ran directly. This was mainly because of cost concerns, and also a recognition that third sector organisations, such as ourselves, can provide services more flexibly and effectively than direct council provision. As part of the preparation, existing providers were encouraged to attend meetings to discuss

"Angela is edging towards retirement.

Following a chance encounter, she is torn whether or not to introduce 'her Patrick' to the son he walked out on and the grandson he's never met. But Patrick has some news that may force her to decide." I knew you is the highly anticipated second play from Birmingham born writer Steven Camden aka Polar Bear. Performances:

what was to happen, and this gave us a chance to set up our own stall with leaflets, information and the chance to explain to people potentially affected what we do. Paula McGrath, our Centre Manager, Des Workman and David Ritchie attended one of these meetings in Ladywood last year. The Council also collected information on what services and facilities different organisations offered, and were impressed by the Robin Centre. One of the first centres to be closed was the African Caribbean Day Centre which operated out of the Community Centre in Heathfield Road. Prior to closure, a number of its members visited us and as a result six new members have joined us, some of them attending for several days in the week. They have made a welcome addition to our family and, from the feedback we have, are enjoying the time they spend with us, the activities, the environment and the transport arrangements, and are getting on well with our staff team. We are delighted to welcome them.
